What Am I proud about:

In this project phase, we've reached a significant milestone by developing a location page that precisely identifies and presents the user's current details, including city, state, and geographic coordinates, achieved through the integration of the Google Geocode API.

Looking ahead, our priority is to improve user experience by introducing features that utilize the identified location. In the forthcoming project updates, we aim to incorporate functionality that pinpoints nearby fitness centers based on the user's location, simplifying the process of finding such facilities.

Furthermore, we are dedicated to enhancing our platform's overall content. As part of this initiative, we intend to introduce food-related blogs and articles on the location page, providing users with valuable information and references related to food for a more comprehensive and engaging experience.
